Dealers in Liquor and Grain, Pike street between Madison and Washington, [near the Tis night, the sun's declining ray Hath kissed farewell the brow of Day, And clinging to the parent breast Sinks slowly to his dreamless rest. Cool is the evening breeze, and calm, Bathing the earth in fragrant balm, The waters still, so clear the sky, That ev'ry gl wing light on high, South-East corner Madison and Sixth Street, Covington, Ky. Jan. 24, 1867. Seems in the crystal sea to lave, Disporting 'mid its glassy wave, And foremost in the glittering train, The Queen of Night asserts her reign, O'er the still deep her mantle throws, Gilds the blue wave, that trembling glows And droops a clear and dazzling veil Over you yessels snowy sail.

'Tis the mid-watch, and moonbeams bright, Beneath a cloud have hid their light, The glory from the night hath gone, But still the ship bears bravely on. WATCHMAKER AND JEWELER Lull'd by the murmurs of the deep, Serene each form is still-in sleep, Constantly on hand a complete assort ment of fine Jewelry, Watches, silver and And the deep silence is unbroke, Save when the one "alls well," is spoke, Above them, now a mournful strain, Arises. dies, then comes asain, And oft it breaths a wailing tone, To mortal minstrelsy unknown, Dealer in Staple and Fancy Dry Goods, Ho-siery, Embraideries and Fancy Goods, Ha! see those gleams of lustrous light, Than beams of noonday sun more bright, Broader grows the light, and higher, The ship of God! the ship's on fire. WM. LONG

> O, what a fearful scene is here, Quivers each wakened heart with fear, They hear the cannon slowly boom, And shuddering, read their awful doom, Some weep, some shrink, some humbly pray Oh, God, thy awful vengeance star! Yet not our wills, but thine be done, Our day has passed, our race is run. And some blaspheme th' Almighty pow'r, Some fiercely laugh to see the week, Shouting aloud, in joyous glee Like demons, at their deviltry. While still in fearful columns flash The flames, and loud the ruins crash.

One show'r of earth stars upward driven, One feeble wail ascends to Heaven, The noble ship, a thing of life Succumbs in the unequal strife, Then shuddering bends, for all is o'er, And quivers, sinks, to rise no more.

The morning sun with waken'd beam, Tinges the sky with rosy gream, Giving the sea a deeper hue, Tinting the clouds with rainbow hues, But not a ripple breaks the waves, That roll above the seamens graves.

Agent for the Singer New Family Sewing Machine.

This machine is without a superior in the world, It runs as fast and easy and with as little noise as any first class machine in marittle noise as any first class machine in market. It will sew from the stoutest leather to the finest bank bill, and makes every stitch perfect. It hems, fells, binds, cords and tucks; and is adapted to every variety of work. It is strong, compact an durable, and will last twenty years, for ordinary family sewing, if not broken by accident or carelessness. But it is useless to parade a long lift of the merits of this machine before the public as the poorest concerns further public as the property of the public as the public fore the public, as the poorest concerns furnish them in the greatest abundance. All can try this muchine by calling on the agent and it will proclaim its own merits.
